Product overview

The Sciabola Ufficiale Esercito is a ceremonial sabre designed for officers of the Esercito Fanteria, combining traditional appearance with service dress requirements. It is intended for military personnel on formal duty, ceremonial events, and collectors who meet legal purchase conditions.

Definition: the Sciabola Ufficiale Esercito is an official military dress sabre for commissioned officers. Suitable keywords: military, tactical, duty, military surplus, police.

Main features

Key design elements and distinguishing details of this official sabre.

- Four-branch guard with three branches oblique and curved for a formal, traditional look.
- Grooved grip for secure handling and classic styling.
- Fascette (ferrules) positioned at precise distances: 7 cm from the scabbard opening and 20 cm from the first ferrule.
- Worn on the left and secured to the belt suspension for proper uniform alignment.
- Limited availability — produced for a restricted number of officers and in high demand.

How to use / When it’s useful

Wear the sabre at the left side, attached to the belt pendaglio. The correct fit is important for appearance and safe handling: when the sabre is sheathed and the wearer stands normally, the top of the grip should be about 15 cm below the waist. Length should be proportionate to the wearer’s stature, measured vertically from the navel to the ground.

Quick answer: wear on the left, secured to the pendaglio; the grip top should sit ~15 cm below the waist. In most cases, a sabre longer than the recommended proportion can make drawing the weapon awkward—ensure length is right for your height.
