for the male rigid cap used by the Marina Militare Italiana. It is intended for active naval personnel and for authorised collectors who hold the required prefectoral licence.

Definition: a ceremonial and service cap badge embroidered in gold canutiglia on black cloth, representing the official naval trophy emblem.

Main features

Built for formal uniform use and preservation, this fregio combines traditional design with durable materials suitable for military, tactical and military surplus collectors.

- Hand-embroidered using traditional canutiglia dorata (gold bullion) for long-lasting shine.
- Black cloth base that provides a clear contrast with the gold embroidery.
- Official Navy trophy design: double laurel branches (three leaves, two berries each), turreted crown with red base, oval shield surrounding a gold anchor.
- Designed for male rigid cap and applied as part of formal and service uniforms.
- High durability materials chosen to preserve appearance over prolonged use.
- Sale restricted to active Marina Militare personnel and authorised collectors under TULPS art. 28.

How to use / When it’s useful

Use the fregio as the official emblem on the male rigid cap for ceremonies, parades and service dress. Quick answer: it is worn with formal naval uniform and should be fitted only to the designated rigid cap.

For purchasing and logistics, the fregio is useful when you need a regulated, authentic insignia for duty appearance or verified collections. In most cases, buyers must register, provide a copy of military ID (or prefectoral licence for collectors) and choose shipping to the service address.

Care and notes

Simple care keeps the fregio in good condition and preserves the gold embroidery; follow these practical notes when storing or cleaning.

- Store dry and flat to avoid bending the embroidery or cloth.
- Avoid abrasive cleaning; prefer gentle dusting or professional textile cleaning if needed.
- Sale is regulated: purchase requires military ID for active personnel or a prefectoral licence (TULPS art. 28) for collectors.
- Limited availability: quantities are controlled and distribution follows regulations for authorised buyers.
