Product overview

Alamari Gala Carabinieri are formal shoulder cords made for members of the Arma dei Carabinieri for use with dress and ceremonial uniforms. They are handcrafted, decorative pieces that signal rank and tradition for police and military duty uniforms.

Definition: A pair of gala alamari is a hand-embroidered silver-thread shoulder cord set worn on the ceremonial uniform. Suitable for military, tactical and police dress contexts.

Main features

Hand-stitched on high-quality black cloth, these alamari combine traditional craftsmanship with formal design details.

- Hand embroidery: Each pair is embroidered by hand for precise detail.
- Silver canutiglia thread: Made with silver canutiglia thread on black fabric for long-lasting appearance.
- Distinctive central design: Rectangular central motif with decorative thread and sequins topped by a five-point engraved silver star.
- Compact size: Dimensions listed as 20 L x 50 mm H, designed to fit the uniform neatly.
- Silver fringe: Rear edge finished with a silver fringe for a refined look.

How to use / When it’s useful

These alamari are intended for formal ceremonies, parades and official events where the Carabinieri dress uniform is required. Quick answer: wear them on the shoulder loops of the gala uniform to display formal affiliation and rank.

They are most useful during inspections, official receptions and ceremonial duties. In most cases, the alamari are attached by trained uniform staff or according to the unit’s uniform regulations to ensure correct placement and appearance.

Care and notes

These are handcrafted ceremonial items that require careful handling and proper documentation for purchase.

- Store flat or on a padded hanger to protect embroidery and fringe.
- Clean gently; avoid abrasive cleaning to preserve the silver thread and sequins.
- Sale reserved to members of the Arma dei Carabinieri; proof of service is required.
- Collectors must present a prefectural licence in accordance with art. 28 TULPS.
