How to use / When it’s useful

Use the Boker Magnum Camo Companion for an array of tasks: field cutting, campsite prep, light hunting chores and everyday utility jobs. The liner lock lets you open and close the blade one-handed for quick access during work or patrols.

Quick answer: it’s intended for outdoor and everyday tactical use. In most cases, carry it clipped inside a pocket or secured by the lanyard; keep the lock clean and periodically check the Allen key adjustment to maintain safe operation.

Care and notes

Basic maintenance keeps the knife reliable—clean and oil the pivot, wipe the blade after use, and check the lock adjustment occasionally. Follow normal safety practices when carrying and using a folding knife.

- Wipe blade dry after exposure to moisture to reduce corrosion risk.
- Apply a drop of light oil to the pivot occasionally for smooth folding.
- Use the included Allen key to adjust the lock if it becomes loose; do not overtighten.
- Keep out of reach of children and follow local laws for knife carry and use.

FAQ

Q: What is the blade made of?

A: The blade is 440A stainless steel, chosen for basic corrosion resistance and wear performance.

Q: Is the knife easy to carry?

A: Yes. It includes a pocket clip, a lanyard and a lanyard hole for multiple carry options.

Q: Is the locking mechanism safe?

A: The liner lock is designed for one-handed operation and secure locking. Regular inspection and occasional adjustment with the supplied Allen key help maintain safety.

Q: Does the knife come with a case?

A: Yes. The knife is delivered in a solid metal case that protects it during storage or transport.

Q: What is the total length when open?

A: The overall length when open is 21.5 cm (as supplied in the product specifications).

Q: How much does the knife weigh?

A: The knife weighs 122 g, making it relatively lightweight for its size and suitable for everyday carry or tactical use.

Tip: Choose the right carry option for your needs—clip, lanyard or secured in a pack—and browse related tactical and military surplus items to complete your kit. Consider the handle and blade dimensions to ensure the knife fits your intended use and local carry rules.
